ELECT OFFICERS FOR CITY LEAGUE

Meeting To-Night of Committee With Managers of Teams Will Launch Amateur League.

A meeting of the managers of the eight teams selected to compose the Richmond Amateur Baseball League, together with the committee appointed at the mass meeting held in Murphy's Hotel two weeks ago, will be held to-night in The Times-Dispatch offices for the purpose of naming a schedule committee, adopting an agreement which must be signed by each of the clubs, and other matters of vital importance to the success of the league.

Present at the meeting, which will begin at $ o'clock, will be Messrs. Butler, Epps. Dunn, Calvin, O'Toole, Lewis and Malbert, of the committee, and P. W. Hadcock, manager of Christ Church Association; W. J. Hechler, manager of the Virginians; William H. Parker, manager of the Battle Axes; F. M. Collien, manager of the Brooklands; G. L. Wilcox manager of the Brooklands; G. L. Wilcox manager of the Brooklands; G. L. Wilcox manager of the Brooklands and John B. Ross, manager of the Highlanders.

Success Practically Assured.

John B. Ross, manager of the High-landers.

Success Practically Assured.

L'Now that the league has been actually formed and that only officers remain to be elected it is believed that the success of the organization is assured. The question of the presidency will be one of the most important matters to be decided at the conference between the managers and the committee. Several names have been suggested, but it will require a vote as to who the man will be to head the new organization.

The agreement to be signed by the several teams which will compose the league will specify that no games are to be played with teams not members of the league without a majority vote of the league without a majority vote of the directors of the league. It will also be provided that each team must guarantee to play all games scheduled unless due notice is given within a reasonable time and sufficient reasons advanced why the game cannot be played.

It will prove by far the most impor-

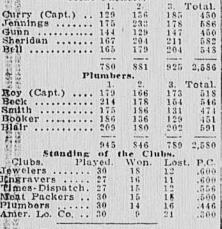

played.

Jit will prove by far the most impor-tant meeting so far held and each of the managers is requested to be on hand on time.

Suffolk was represented at the meeting by a quartet of men interested in the project for a ball club in that city, and James Fufoot, also present, was satisfied that if an opening could be made for Elizabeth City, the North Carolina hustling town would come in gladly. Upon the representation that Hampton was probably in a receptive mood, and the league managers desirous of having that city represented a franchise was voted to that city, and the following committee was named to place it there, if possible: Messrs, van Patten, Moore and President Hannan, H. S. Fitzgerald spoke for the Suffolk delegation, and announced that not only had a stock company been in the field and maintain it for the 1911 seasons. will be made this afternoon at a conference to be held between representatives of the military organization and the college. It appears as if the meet will be held, and it follows that it will be a success.

Tentative plans have already been made, and these plans contemplate an innovation, so far as track meets in Richmond are concerned. L. T. Jones, physical instructor in the public schools, has agreed to furnish relay teams from eight of the grammar schools of the city—four from the East End and four from the West End—to take part in the meet.

These races between the grammar school athletes will be an elimination affair, the four schools from each section of the city to race against each other and the winner in each division to enter the finals.

It was also decided that the open-air meet to be held here April 12 at the ball park would be conducted as a dual affair by the Richmond College. It was ihought that by joining forces more interest could be created and the meet made more of a representative city affair.

The list of events will be elaborate. Every sport known to field and track athletics will be on the list of events. Relay races, shot-puts, hurdles, high Peruvian when it comes to sticking Sergeant Satterfield, and other such to go that far in predicting. To show that I am willing to give all the information I have, and that I really had none until within the past few days, the first contract signed by a ball player or for the Norfolk club was on February 5, and to date there are but seven men actually signed—four pitchers, two infielders and one outfielder.

Some Norfolk Players,
They are Pool, of Paris, Ky, whom I bought. He was seventeen and lost eleven games in 1910, and is a left-hander. Start, of Cleveland, O., and Walker, of Selma, Ala, both semi-pros., with remarkably good references, and Merrill, of Jonesbovo, Ark., who played last year with the Northeastern Arkansas League. He was sick throughout the season and didn't work. I also out the season and didn't work. I also will not stand for any rowdyism, on or off the ball field. Neither will it be playing the umpire instead of the opposing club. We will have a clean, husting club, such as will, I am sure, please the very good people of Norfolk, who I have found to be some of the finest people I have ever met.

Nominally the players were employed in the shoe shop, but really they did nothing but play ball.

There was no organized league then, but the Virginias played with the Orioles, of Baitimore; the Bostons, the Philadelphia Athletics and the Providence, R. I., team.

It was great baseball in those days. Billy Nash, according to "Pop," was the greatest hitter of ancient or modern times. Then you could call for a ball where you wanted it, high or low. Bill was strong for the low ones, and when the ball came over, whew—away it went, and some of them were never found.

Incidentally, Mr. Tate looked over the new diamond and pronounced it O. K. He had but one suggestion to make, and that was that a cinder path be built around the field for the pur-pose of giving the ball players some exercise.

Sullivan looked and listened as the member of Richmond's police force told of the days that are gone.

Buck Hooker, Stanley Bigbie, fresh from an operation; Frank Bigbie and Dutch Revelle made up the audience.

Bob White, the local infielder, who will get a tryout, and Whitline, the mute catcher, kept on at work during the gabfest, while Joe Heusler played with his dog.

Now we are informed that it is practically certain that Richmond fans will not be satisfied with the quality of baseball which will be given them during the present season.

I do not know by what authority such a statement is made, but it strikes me as being manifestly absurd, not to say childish. Richmond fans are not conversant with what kind of baseball will be given them in 1911. Richmond fans are reasonable and are willing to wait and find out what they are going to get before passing judgment.

Such remarks are wholly without reason and simply supply words to fill a certain amount of space. I am not in a position to quote Gwner Bradnes, because I have not questioned him on the subject; but I am certain that he does not feel that he is going to supply a quality of ball with which the Richmond fans "are practically certain to be displeased."

So far as I have been able to ascertain—and I have talked to a number of fans—the people who are the steadlest supporters of the game in Richmond believe that they are going to get real baseball this season, not the makebelieve article which has been given for several seasons past.

Has Richmond outgrown the Virginia League? Confessedly, I am unable to answer that question. But even if Richmond has outgrown the Virginia League, in what other league is there a chance to get a franchise? The Eastern League has no franchise to offer. That is certain.

Guess I'd better stop, because I might write something which would never pass the man who reads copy if I keep on. It's rot, nonsonse pure and simple, to say that the Virginia League is not going to give good baseball this season. And it's an assumption of knowledge possessed by no one short of the Infinte to say what the fans are going to say about an article of baseball about which neither they nor the

The four ball best ball tournament handicap played at the Country Club yesterday was very interesting, being the first of the kind played in Rich-

Twenty-eight players qualified, and the close scores turned in prove that this is by far the fairest way of conducting a handicap tournament; furthermore, on a crowded course such as the Country Club, it will prove this season preeminently the best way of providing a tournament for a large number of players.
